

Identity Wheel

for a global student

A reflection tool to help students explore the dimensions of identity that shape how they show up in the classroom and the world. Use the worksheet on the next page to think through each piece.

NAME

DATE

Reflect on each piece of who you are.

Identity is made up of many parts. Take a few minutes with each prompt below. There are no wrong answers, and you can come back to this anytime.

01

Birth Country

Describe where you were born. Write the country, city, and community.

02

Family Culture

What languages, cultures, religions, and traditions are practiced in your home?

03

Local Community

Where do you live now? What socioeconomic factors impact you?

04

Age

How old are you? What responsibilities come with your age? What level of agency or autonomy do you have?

05

Free Time

What do you do in your free time? Do you use technology and social media? Spend time outdoors? With friends or alone?

Now zoom out.

Look back at your five answers. What surprises you? What do these pieces have in common? Where do they push against each other?
